Vicki Stoecklin worked with me to design a new Head Start facility. As an architect I know a good bit about the arrangement of forms and materials to create interesting space. To design an excellent facility, I needed the experience of a person like Vicki who knows the subtle and particular information about the way children and staff interact with their space. Vicki is knowledgeable about both the indoor and outdoor environments, and the equipment most suitable to those environments.

The work of my firm and the final facility design are significantly enhanced because of Vicki's participation in the design process. I would recommend her as a consultant to any design team responsible for an early childhood education facility.
